Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.SEA SPECIES In the Southern Arizona desert a small group of idealistic scientists, some refugees from the Biosphere 2 project, have constructed an isolated community called Kihhim (Tohono O Odham for the Village). Away from the prying eyes of the press, the public, and the regulation of government, they have built a society along the principles behind Biosphere 2. At the foot of Baboquivari Peak, the mythical birthplace of the People according to Tohno O Odham legend, in a secluded valley, they are almost a space colony, yet on the Earth. In order to maintain an independent and almost closed ecosystem, they have genetically manipulated plants grown in their greenhouses to greatly enhance the productivity. When the body of Marty Hinson, a prominent environmentalist is found on their property, they come under the very scrutiny they have avoided. Accusations are lodged by the environmentalist s group, and they are investigated by the United States as isolationists with potentially harmful technology. They are attacked by religious zealots and terrorist Ralph Whitney for their biological technology and genetic abilities. Kihhim...
