It is the poet s eye which most clearly sees it, and the poet s pen which can most clearly describe it. If we could see or hear, or feel nothing, but that which could be actually impressed on. the outward senses, in what a comparative desert should we live? To contemplate the waste of human talents on unworthy trifles; to see genius occupied in pursuit of the butterfly, while the rainbow vanishes undescribed, is a subject of pain and regret. It matters not perhaps to the artificial wretches, who waste their days in what is called the luxury of fashionable life: a set, to whom Nature is a bore; and feeling a proof of vulgarity! a set, to whom eloquence is the subject of a stupid sarcasm; and pathos the occasion for a puny joke! a set, who, if they are in a grave...
